

Kangerlussuaq - a winged shawl

Design: Charlotte Kaae

Kangerlussuaq (or Sønderstrømfjord in Danish), is one of Greenland's southernmost fjords, and one I know particularly well from my childhood in Greenland. This large winged shawl is inspired by this beautiful fjord and by the fells surrounding it.

Directions for knitting

The shawl is knit in one piece from wingtip to wingtip. The increases and decreases create the shape of the shawl and you only ever work with color at a time. Slipped stitches create the pattern with cables in the main color and garter ridges in the contrast colors.

Shawl

Throughout the work you switch between working one garter ridge (2 knit rows) in MC and one in CC. CC changes in the following order: CC A, CC B, CC C with one garter ridge in each color. Do not break the yarn when changing color, but let the colors not used trail along the edge.
