OBSESSED WITH QUALITY YARN SINCE 1952

Madison

The sound of jazz is for the designer full of shapes and colours. Madison is a light and adorable crocheted blouse with raglan sleeves and a beautiful draping. The draping was particularly important when going dancing in 1920s jazz clubs. Dresses and blouses had to have some swing when women were taking on the dance floor.

Workflow

The sweater is made top-down.
Begin with the yoke, skip the stitches for the sleeves and then make the body.

Join yarn in the sleeve openings and make the sleeves.

The first part of the yoke is made in rows to make an opening at the top of the back. Begin every row with 1 ch.

The rest of the sweater is made in rounds, but you still need to turn (change crochet direction) after each round. End every round with 1 sl st into the 1st st, and make 1 ch.
